SYNOPSIS

"death is an empty fridge" is an invitation to wander the nostalgic hallways of a home in grief. After losing her father at the age of thirteen, the author guides us through a cathartic journey where writing serves as an outlet in the search to understand what remains when so much has gone. Between longing recollections and memories of an invented future, this book is an exploration into the depths of loss in a desperate search for meaning in a world of absences.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Sara Vicente Minaré is an artist, writer, and architecture and urbanism student at the Universidade Federal de Goiás. At thirteen, she plunged into the universe of poetry as a way to heal from the trauma of losing her father. Since then, honest writing—reminiscent of a diary—and sensitivity, however visceral, have become hallmarks of her work. Her debut book, “death is an empty fridge”, is a collection of fractures, texts written with an urgency to live.
