SYNOPSIS

Murilo, an anxious and ironic journalist, turns humor into his favorite armor. During therapy sessions where his traumas and fears surface, he is challenged to bring along Cabrita da Peste, a TV series script he wrote, to help reveal what he hides inside. The protagonist Lindalva, a fearless woman from the sertão, begins to intertwine with Murilo's own dilemmas, while he tries to understand what keeps him from trusting and opening up to new relationships. Amid laughter and reflection, he confronts the emotional barriers that imprison him, discovering that believing in himself may be the key to rewriting his own story.
