SYNOPSIS

In the summer of 2038, humanity makes first contact with an extraterrestrial race. In Rio de Janeiro, history teacher Ravi Cicco suddenly finds his life intertwined with that of Garo Sun, an agender alien; together, they now hold the fate of their species in their hands. As they live side by side through an initially troubled relationship, Ravi and Garo navigate the parallels between humans and the Najooren, even amidst impending external threats. The bond emerging between them will face tests from both the past and the future, seeking what it truly means to be human and the price that must be paid to prevent the downfall of their worlds.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jaciara Maria is a science fiction novelist and short story writer born in the outskirts of Natal, Rio Grande do Norte. At age thirty, she received a late diagnosis of level two autism.
