SYNOPSIS

With a language that is raw yet poetic, "Tasting" leads us to question our own experiences and to find beauty and meaning in the most unexpected moments. It is an invitation to reflect on what truly matters in an increasingly complex and fast-paced world. Reflections on human nature in a fragmented world, the alienation and disenchantment of the individual in the face of technology and consumerism, and the search for meaning in everyday life and the beauty of the mundane.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Born and raised in Vale do Paraíba, São Paulo, he is currently an undergraduate student in Philosophy at the Universidade Federal do Paraná. He only became interested in literature and poetry after finishing high school, despite having written poems since his adolescence out of sheer necessity. A need to spit words onto paper. Leonardo dislikes being confined by his name, but enjoys being given nicknames. "Degustação" is his first published book.
