SYNOPSIS

"diálogos unilaterais ou como Lúcifer inventou o amor" acts as the cohesive layer that unveils the secrets and confessed truths of his literature. The book is a visceral and confessional exploration of the complexities of affection, desire, and loneliness. In its modern form, yet bearing romantic influences, the work delves into the one-sided dialogues of the poetic persona, whose poems have a life of their own and openly examine the complexity of relationships. Love is unraveled in four acts as a feeling that is "fleeting, bashful, and charming," which promises to stay, but often departs.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

An architect and urban planner born in 1977 in Goiânia, Eliézer Bilemjian Ribeiro works in the fields of architecture, drawing, visual arts, photography, video, and poetry. He began his teaching career in 2003, and the tangle of everyday life provides the raw material for his texts, handwritten in a script that only he can decipher.

In 2015, he published the book “Da Capa ao Fim”, winner of the 2013 Concurso Vertentes, through Editora UFG.
