SYNOPSIS

A visceral lesbian account turning the insides out of a woman who ventures into relationships with dangerous women. Blending personal essay and poetry, the speaker plays with everyday language and elements of magical realism to narrate abusive relationships between women.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Beatriz holds a degree in Pedagogy from the Universidade de São Paulo and a postgraduate degree in Project Management. She works in arts education, and while completing her debut novel, she lived and worked with riverside communities in the Pantanal, translating into art the wildfires that affected the region in 2024. Describing herself as someone who feels too deeply, Beatriz invites us into the most intimate realm of human relationships, using writing to make sense of her sexuality and the many nuances of what it means to love women.
