SYNOPSIS

Young Henrique, newly arrived in the fictional town of Novo Paraíso, whose mother is suffering from grief-induced depression, seeks at all costs a way to help her reclaim her lost happiness. As he strives toward this goal, he is also pulled in by the power of his own imagination, navigating a fantastical plot filled with captivating figures from Brazilian folklore, alongside dialogues that will offer him unforgettable moments. A fascinating story that will hook the reader through its sensitivity and the humorous tone with which the narrative is led. It is an oneiric journey back to that time of imagination and childhood that we may have left dormant within ourselves.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The author currently resides in the small town of Fraiburgo, in the countryside of Santa Catarina. Born in 1990, he holds a law degree and has practiced as an attorney since 2013. He decided to write in order to release the dam of creativity he kept inside as a result of his journey as a reader. He believes that not all stories have been told, and he feels the need to give voice to characters silenced over the years by Brazilian society, redirecting readers' eyes toward shadowy and forgotten spaces. Writing comes to him to soothe restlessness and unease. His aim is to reveal and describe the absurdity in everyday scenes and discover the magic in mundane events. Finally, he agrees with Kafka when he says that everything that is not literature bores him.
