SYNOPSIS

"Stones Along the Way" tells the story of Doni, a man facing a crisis in his marriage who must find a way to reconnect with his son, Guto, who is struggling at school. On his way to a meeting with the principal to discuss Guto's behavior, Doni tries to uncover what is happening with the boy, while wrestling with ghosts from his own past that resurface in his memories. The narrative follows Doni's search for answers and a way to overcome the traumas that haunt him, as he simultaneously attempts to grow closer to Guto and help him navigate his own challenges. The book explores the complexity of family relationships, the importance of dialogue, and the obstacles that must be surmounted to rebuild fragile emotional bonds.
