SYNOPSIS

Through the objective, imagery-rich poetry of Series of Things Left Unsaid, we are invited to tap into perceptions we do not usually reveal: curiosity, observation, and doubt; disconnection, rupture, and farewell; dreams, memory, and discovery. How many things stem from what remains open? And how do the impressions screaming within us interact with those we encounter on the outside?

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

I was born in São Paulo in July 1997. I am an interior designer by training, a singer by hobby, and curious by nature: I have worked as a foreign trade analyst, editorial producer, and book typesetter. Trials and professions aside, writing has held a special place in my observant heart from an early age.
